

Development from within your organization.

For small and medium-sized companies, developing your own training platform is disproportionately costly and time-consuming. With the Digital Cube, a highly technologically advanced and state-of-the-art platform for training and continuing education of your employees, is now ready for use. It is intuitive and user-friendly, and thanks to the Digital Cube, it only takes a few clicks to upload e-learning content and make it available to specific user groups. Recruiters and HR professionals can also post job advertisements and candidates can submit online applications directly via the platform. You can even create a corporate blog, which can be used to explain, advertise, and notify employees about learning content.

More Than Just a Learning Management System.

Thanks to a vast existing network of universities and course providers, there are already more than 1500 free e-learning courses in the system that can be easily added to your own content and made available via the Digital Cube. The readily available learning content covers topics related to current IT and digitalization topics such as the cloud, cybersecurity, big data, and Internet of Things, on the one hand. On the other hand, there are also courses to enhance soft skills in demand in the labor market such as change management, critical thinking, communication, and creativity.

Tailored to Meet Your Specific Needs.

To ensure that your learning platform is also perceived as your own, we will adapt the design and the URL to match your corporate design and suit your specific needs. Using a modular design system, you can add and remove individual functionalities as well as restrict and release content thematically or geographically. For example, it is possible to create a regional tenant that is limited only to the federal state of Tyrol. Therefore, only job advertisements from Tyrol will be displayed to users from that region. Another tenant could be a member organization that makes e-learning courses on just one specific subject area available to its members.
